FOREWORD

Welcome to the Australian soccer Hall of Fame book in this its sixth year.

Induction into the ASA Hall of Fame is due appreciation for those who have made a significant and lasting contribution to the advancement of our great game.

Inductees come from a wide cross-section of the soccer community and may have served the game in any capacity, be it playing, administrative, coaching, refereeing or media.

Australia has a rich soccer history that has perhaps not always been given the recognition it deserves, and as we approach the 125th anniversary of Australia's first recorded game of soccer, the ASA through the Hall of Fame and other mechanisms will be looking to redress this imbalance.

As we enter what I assure you will be an exciting and vibrant era for Australian soccer, it is as important as ever to recognise those individuals who have contributed to the sport in the past, and no doubt will continue to do so in the future.

Special thanks must be made to the Hall of Fame Honours Committee for their hard work and dedication in ensuring suitable recognition for some of the servants of the game.

Finally on behalf of the Australian Soccer Association, I would like to sincerely congratulate all inductees for their outstanding contribution to Australian soccer.

GRAHAM ARNOLD

Sydney striker, born August 3, 1963, Arnold started with junior leagues before joining Sydney club Canterbury Marrickville and then Sydney Croatia when it won the NSW State League and was promoted to the NSL.

Played 178 games, including 67 goals with Sydney United (Croatia) from 1984 to 1989-90 season which included award as 1986 NSL Player of the Year and top scorer with 17 goals. Won first Australian selection in friendly against Tasmania in 1985 and made senior debut in a 14 year career against Red Star July 31 1985 when he scored in three successive games.

First A international was against Chinese Taipei in 1986 World Cup qualifiers at Adelaide where he scored his first Socceroo goal.

Played in the 1986, 1990, 1994 and 1998 World Cup campaigns, 1988 Olympic Games and Bi-Centenary Gold Cup. Moved overseas to play in Belgium, Japan and Holland where he became prominent with Roda JC in Holland as a leading striker.

He returned to Australia in 1998 to join Northern Spirit in the National League as inaugural coach where he also played in 28 matches and scored five goals for an overall total of 225 NSL games and 72 goals.

Arnold played for Australia in 88 matches, including 56 A internationals and scored 33 goals, 19 at A level before being appointed as assistant national coach for the 2004 Olympic Games and 2006 World Cup campaign.

MEDAL OF EXCELLENCE

JACK HUGHES

Another outstanding striker from the Northern NSW area who made his name in the years before World War II. "Bully" Hughes learned his football with West Wallsend and progressed as a striker before the depression years forced a move to the strong Metters club in Sydney where his performances led to national selection. Made his international debut against New Zealand in Sydney June 1933 where he scored the last goal in Australia's 6-4 win. Played 25 matches for Australia, 10 A and scored 16 goals. Also played against England (1937), India (1938) and Palestine (1938). In the first Test against England Amateurs at the Sydney Cricket Ground, he stirred the 45,237 crowd by scoring 10 seconds after kickoff leading to an Australian 5-4 win.

JACK REILLY

Born 1945 in Scotland and played with Hibernians and in the USA before settling in Melbourne as a goalkeeper with Juventus in 1969. Transferred to Sydney St George before switching to Melbourne Hakoah. Won selection in the 1970 world tour with a strong opening game against New Caledonia, then Iran, Israel, Greece and Mexico. Business commitments forced him out of the game in early 1970s and lost his place to Ron Corry and Jim Fraser but he fought back to be selected in the 1974 World Cup squad to Germany. Played in all three World Cup finals games against West Germany, East Germany and Chile. Played 35 internationals, 15 A class.

"FOREVER OUR CAPTAIN SOCCEROO"

This simple phrase, paraded on a banner by members of the Sydney St George soccer club, summed up the feelings of sports fans nationally over the November death at the age of 61 of former Australian soccer captain Johnny Warren.

There were tributes from around the world for a sportsman who never stopped his mission of promoting what he called the 'beautiful' world game and the principles of fair play.

And his importance was recognised by the NSW government which gave Warren the rare honour of becoming the first sportsman to receive a State funeral. A standing-room only St Andrews Cathedral and hundreds outside attended the service and city streets shut down as Brazilian and Uruguayan bands assured an upbeat funeral procession to celebrate rather than mourn the life of a remarkable man.

Warren spent most of his playing career with Sydney club St George. He started his representative career in 1953 at the age of 10 when selected for the NSW Churches State team and won his first national cap in November 1965 when Australia drew 0-0 with Cambodia.

By 1967, he was Socceroo captain and played in the 1970 and 1974 World Cup campaigns. He retired after taking part in 62 internationals for Australia and embarked on a 30 years campaign of teaching and preaching soccer to Australians.

In 1990, the National Soccer League announced the Warren Medal as its Player-of-the-Year award, he was an inaugural inductee in 1999 into the Australian Soccer Hall of Fame, inducted into the Bicentennial Sporting Hall of Fame and given a special award by FIFA president Sepp Blatter.

For decades, Johnny Warren has been the public voice and face of Australian soccer. Inductees such as players Joe Marston, Bob Bignell, Jim Masters, Ron Lord and Reg Date, coaches Rale Rasic, Frank Arok and Eddie Thomson, officials Sir Arthur George and Vic Tuting and others had contributed in their own way to the code.

But Warren was different. He was not prepared to sit in the background and hope. Similar to his role as an attacking player, he transferred his courage and bravery to challenge those who questioned his campaign to bring world football into the Australian public arena.

He had to fight a media which relegated soccer to the back pages as an imported game, despite the fact that all Australian football codes originated overseas. It was called a newcomer to Australia, despite its official start in Sydney in August, 1880. Warren was a solitary voice, struggling to be heard, arguing for an end to ethnic rivalry, for more professional administration, for better relations overseas especially Asia and South America.

His forecasts for the future, derided by so many, were correct and his critics were wrong. The last World Cup was watched by 14.8 million Australians, and today more than a million Australians play or have a direct association with soccer. This is partly due to Johnny Warren, a football missionary and a great ambassador to whom we owe an enormous debt of gratitude.

SBS-TV commentator Les Murray, a close friend of Warren, vowed to pick up and continue the fight. "We will emerge strengthened by his legacies and memories, our heads raised, smiling in the face of the winds of hostility and resistance. The future belongs to Johnny Warren and we will win," he said.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO

One hundred years ago, two events - major and minor - changed the world of football in different areas. Representatives of seven associations, Belgium, Denmark, France, Netherlands, Spain, Sweden and Switzerland, got together in Paris in May 1904 to discuss the formation of an international football organisation which led to the birth of the world body FIFA.

From this small beginning, FIFA has grown to an organisation of 204 nations which has only had seven presidents from Robert Guerin (1904) to the current Joseph S Blatter (1998) and has created the World Cup for men and women, world championships at Under 17 and Under 20 level, taking part in the Olympic Games at Under 23 level, the World Club championship and uniting all branches of soccer.

On its last figures, soccer football now has 250 million players around the world, 80 percent of them Under 20 as well as 100,000 professionals.

Australia, after a brief period of suspension over European player transfers, became an affiliate of FIFA in 1963 and made its first entry in the World Cup with its 1966 campaign.

At the other end of the world in June, 1904, the fledgling sport, with a brief 24 years of existence in Australia took a giant step forward when a NSW team accepted an invitation to tour New Zealand.

The New Zealand Football association, in an endeavour to expand the sport, had sought a national team visit but as Australia had not yet formed a national body, they accepted an offer from NSW, as the senior State to visit.

Selectors chose a party of 15 to travel with 13 from Sydney. Fred Robinson was captain-manager along with Tom Spencer (goals), Syd Condon, Andy McMahon, Will Thorpe (fullbacks), Perce Timms, Syd Hilder, Bob Byers, Con Harrison, Frank Wardell (halfbacks), Andy Rae (South Coast), Bert Moore, Perce Medcalf, Jack Wishart (Newcastle), Will Carey (forwards). Rae, Carey, Condon and Harrison were State representatives, while Timms, Moore, McMahon, Byers, Thorpe, Spencer, Hilder and Wardell had all played in Gardiner (NSW State) Cup finals.

The tour of nine matches proved successful with NSW winning five games, two draws, two losses, scoring 29 goals and conceding 13. The results were: NSW 1 North Island 1, NSW 3 Auckland 2, NSW 6 Canterbury 0, NSW 2 Otago 4, NSW 8 Southland 0, NSW 1 Wellington 2, NSW 1 NZ 0, NSW 4 Timora 0, NSW 3 NZ 3. On their return to Sydney, the NSW team played a "Welcome Home" match where they defeated the Rest of NSW 3-1.

HOW THE HALL OF FAME WORKS

Any person who has made an outstanding contribution to soccer in Australia shall be eligible to be nominated for the Australian Soccer Hall of Fame.

There will be three categories involving 'on the field' and 'off the field' participants. Players must have been retired for a minimum of three years to be eligible, while all other candidates (coaches, referees, officials and media) are eligible at any time.

HALL OF CHAMPIONS / HALL OF HONOUR

Awarded for eminent service or contribution in any area of soccer football activity. Outstanding performance on the playing field in an Australian representative capacity will be recognised in the Hall of Champions, while outstanding performance as an official or other non-playing capacity will be recognised in the Hall of Honour. This award will be the highest recognition which can be given for contribution to the growth and development of the game in Australia.

MEDAL OF EXCELLENCE / ROLL OF HONOUR (Distinguished)

This award recognises distinguished service or contribution which is above and beyond what would be expected of players and non-players. It recognises a player who has represented Australia at an international level on a significant number of occasions, or a non-player whose contribution has achieved national recognition.

AWARD OF DISTINCTION / ROLL OF HONOUR (Meritorious)

This award is made for outstanding service or contribution which is beyond what would be expected. It recognises those persons whose contribution has been selfless in the development of soccer in Australia from the grass roots level and who have earned admiration and respect for their contribution.
